

Corrigendum – 21/6/2023

In the process of preparing the final version of my thesis for deposit into the University of Liverpool's repository, the section below was accidentally excluded. While the content does not make any changes to the findings presented in my thesis, it is important to me that it be included with the thesis as if it were not for the people in my acknowledgements, I would not have been able to complete the work.

Acknowledgements

I have benefitted from three excellent supervisors that have helped me throughout the research process. I would like to thank Dr Margaret Procter for her patience as I figured out the direction of the research, support through the twists and turns of the process, and her keen critical eye when providing feedback. Dr Andrew Smith has helped immensely in guiding the research into what was a new discipline for me and helping me begin my academic career. Maria Sienkiewicz has been incredibly welcoming despite the extra workload this project no doubt caused, always being willing to help fact check, proofread, and help me to access interviewees. I would also like to thank the other archivists at BGA for their help and being welcoming to an outsider who took up both their time, and office space, during the research.

I would also like to thank my friends up here in Liverpool, in particular Tom, Louise, Emma, Beth, Nick, and Matt, for the support and much-needed distractions from the thesis. I would also like to thank my friends back down in Birmingham, particularly Matt, Dave, Wayne, and Mill for their support and for their help in forcing me to define my thesis by repeatedly asking what it is and when I'll be done. I would also like to thank two of my secondary school teachers, Ms Prior and Mr Darwood, who were the first teachers I had that made me think that maybe I could do something like this.

Despite appearing that I'm trying, it would be impossible to thank everyone that helped me in some way in completing this thesis. Crucially, I would like to thank my mom and my nan for their love and support; I wouldn't have been able to do this without the security they provided me to pursue my direction in life. I would also like to thank my dad; I wish you could've been here so I could share what I've achieved with you. Last, but not at all least, I want to thank Katarina for her love, support, and enthusiasm throughout the PhD. Without her faith in me, I wouldn't have been able to do this.
